Comcast to unleash global UI for TVs, streaming media players

In streaming, scale is the name of the game. And a scaling strategy is now taking shape at Comcast as the company plows ahead with a plan to deploy a "global" user interface for a software platform that, for now, is largely being deployed in North America and Europe.

Later this year, Comcast will launch "one global user interface for Sky Glass, Xfinity, X1, Flex, Xumo and our US and international partners," Comcast Chairman and CEO Brian Roberts said today on the company's earnings call. "Every entertainment customer around the world will get the same Emmy award-winning voice controlled experience."

Charter rakes in record 615K mobile lines, base balloons to 5.29M

Aided by its new "Spectrum One" convergence package, Charter Communications added a record 615,000 mobile lines in the fourth quarter of 2022, extending its grand total to 5.29 million. Charter added 1.72 million mobile lines for all of 2022, handily beating the 1.18 million lines added in 2021.

The result blew out expectations, as analysts expected Charter to add about 413,000 mobile lines in the period. Charter's Q4 mobile take dwarfed its previous record of 382,000 lines set in Q3 2022.

Charter's rapid growth puts its mobile base within shouting distance of the 5.31 million mobile lines Comcast had at the end of 2022.
